Organiser's comments - Elisabeth Hale and Steve Owers

Phew! Never again we said at the end of the weekend. Things certainly conspired against us even down to the weather on the Saturday. I shall not forget in a hurry visiting the nearest farm the day before to obtain water (after the cadet bowser was requisitioned for Gulf crisis two days earlier) to be told 'Sorry we're on spring water and that's nearly dry, you can have water out of the pond, that's what we give hte cows!'

The person hours that go into putting on an event are enormous: surveying, drawing, planning, controlling, making and erecting stiles, tracking down equipment, overprinting, bagging, on-the-day help, etc. - virtually all voluntary, so it is a pity we have two gripes regarding wall crossings and the manned control - see Malcolm McIvor's comments (planner day 2).

All handout pre-event information clearly stated limited badge entry on the day, so apologies to those who were disappointed, but if you want to be sure of a run of your choice then pre-enter.

Sorry again for the delays and many thanks to all the helpers.

Planner's comments - Malcolm McIvor

Such has been the forestry activity over the last year or so in Hamsterley that it would have been impossible to put challenging orienteering courses on in the area were it not for the access to the moorland of Cabin Hill. This enabled me to introduce long navigation legs which offered numerous route choices, particularly on the longer courses. I hope you enjoyed that aspect as well as the challenge of moving from moorland terrain to woodland and back to moorland. I know that when I am competing, such change of terrain is often my undoing.

I am sorry about the lines of shooting butts being left off the map. I think that I am more annoyed than you, the competitor, because I updated the map only this summer.

From the comments that I picked up from conversations at the finish and in the car pars most of you enjoyed your courses and that Hamsterley will not register in your books as another of those 'North East' forests.

One black mark goes to those competitors who blatantly ignored all our requests to cross walls ONLY by the marked crossing points and climbed the walls. WHEN WILL YOU REALISE THAT THIS SORT OF ACTION PUTS THE FUTURE USE OF PRIME AREAS SUCH AS HAMSTERLEY AT RISK AND THAT IS SERIOUS FOR OUR CLUB IN PARTICULAR AND FOR ORIENTEERS IN GENERAL.

A second black mark must go to those long course competitors who were not only unco-operative at the manned control but were positively abusive towards the official. This control was an essential feature in the success of long courses in such a small area and required your full co-operation to eliminate the possibility of taking controls out of sequence. Northern Navigators have the names of three people in particular who they may well contact individually.

Thank you Chris, as controller, for putting up with a tight timetable for the event and keeping me under control, and an even bigger thank you to organisers Elisabeth Hale and Steve Owers for all their hard work.

Controller's comments - Chris Wright (CLOK)

Controlling someone as experienced as Malcolm McIvor is not very onerous! I'm sure that you'll agree that Malcolm succeeded in producing interesting and varied courses in perhaps a little less than ideal area. My main input came when there was a general re-hash in order to cut out a mjr stile building, and I suggested that the courses could be increased a little in length. Perhaps in the end the M21A and W21A courses were a smidgin too long. I hope this didn't upset too many people!

I also suggested that the longest colour coded courses be called Light Green rather than Red, due to a few technical controls. Some running friends commented that this course was actually easier than some Red courses they'd ran. Future planners please note - Red courses are Long Orange courses for runners!

Finally, a comment for those upset with the lack of pre-marked maps for entries on the day. Having checked 250 more pre-marked maps than the original pre-entry figures, even I thought numbers were OK. However there were a lot of late pre-entries who ate up the excess. I am sure that, on the day, there were unused maps on courses apparently sold out. Can I suggest that it is a matter of common courtesy to ring the organiser if you have pre-entered and cannot run, due to illness, injury or work commitments. You shouldn't necessarily expect a refund, but at least entry on the day people, who may not have pre-entered due to illness, injury etc., could have a pre-marked map.
