Organiser's comments -

Firstly, apologies must be made for the lateness of these results which unfortunately could not be avoided. Secondly, many thanks are given to those helpers who turned out on a cold and frosty morning.

The DIY registration on the whole seemed to work but one competitor registered for the yellow course and tried to complete the orange. It should be noted that two of the younger competitors retired but failed to report to the finish that they were doing so. It is important that all competitors ensure that they report to the finish even if they are retiring so as to avoid unnecessary searches.

Princess Anne Park has an unfair reputation for being more of a parkland stroll. Overnight snow and the creative course planning by Tom on short notice produced a fair challenge for all competitors. I tender thanks to Tom for his considerable effort which I am sure was appreciated by all. The problems of an urban area means that we lost a few controls, but it is to be hoped that competitors might have anticipated this, so it did not spoil things too much for you.
